

www.theluckyewe.com.au

www.facebook.com.au/theluckyeweatoatlandshandmade.com.au

112 High Street Oatlands Tasmania 7120

THERMOFORMABLE FELT

DHG Thermoformable Felt is made from wool and a small amount of polyester (90% wool and 10% polyester). It is used often in Europe to make durable objects, even shoes! It can be used as a wonderful base for backgrounds and stitching but because it is moldable, 3D becomes possible or simply use it as a felt base to embellish or felt into.

'Thermo' felt is "cooked" in an oven @140c for approx 30 mins which causes the polyester component to soften and therefore retain its shape when it cools making it suitable for structural or sculptural shapes or accessories. It will retain the shape you make before you heat it.

We recommend you do some test pieces to assess how hot and how long it will take in your own oven. It can also be done in a microwave. Paler shades may discolour if heated for too long.

Composition: 90% wool - 10% polyester. 2 mm thick. Width 150 cm. Available to buy by the metre or 30 x 30cm squares in 45 lovely colours.

Made in Italy. Located in Tuscany, the famous textile district of Prato, DHG (Dyeing House Gallery) have been processing and dyeing fibre since 1954. Colour and quality are the cornerstones of their philosophy. The Lucky Ewe is excited and proud to be your sole Tasmanian stockist of DHG 18.5 micron merino tops, prefelts, thermoformable felt, slubs, nepps and more. Call in-store to view the colour charts of the full range - up to 80 colours - and see the samples.

BOWL IMAGE from DALE ROLLERSON : Co-owner of The Thread Studio in Perth, Dale is the queen of embellishment & stitch, travels and teaches extensively in Australia, New Zealand and North America. "I am a textile artist and owner of The Thread Studio. I am passionate about all areas of textile art and try to be as cutting edge as I can. I enjoy machine and hand stitching, developing ideas using a needle felting machine and playing and experimenting with all manner of textile stuff. I have been a teacher for many years and run a number of on-line and in the flesh workshops" Dale will be teaching for Kraftkolour in 2013.

web: www.thethreadstudio.com